Handicraftsmen Will Not Be Permitted To Register

GOVERNMENT TO SELL STOCKS IN ALL STORES

Aryans May Be Required to Divorce Jewish Wives

By OHN A. BOUMAN

Berlin, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Nazi government added two more regulations today to its campaign against Jewish business.

One provided that Jews be dropped from the roster of registered handicraftsmen.

The other was that stocks of Jewish retail shops, to be liquidated before Jan. 1, are to be handed over to various governmental trade departments or public receivers in bankruptcy.

And, while Japan, Germany and Italy observed the anniversary of their anti-Communist pact and Germany and Japan reached an accord on cultural cooperation, economic pressure was being applied to have Aryans divorce Jewish wives on penalty of losing their jobs.

Instances were known of "unofficial representations" made by big concerns to Aryan employees that it would behoove them to divorce Jewish wives.

Marriage Decree Rumored

Official confirmation was lacking for reports that a decree was being contemplated compelling the dissolution of so-called mixed marriages.

Other developments today included:

1. A declaration by foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop that the German-Japanese-Italian anti-Communist pact had checked Communism in Spain, China and Czechoslovakia.

2. Transmission by the United States embassy of a note to the German government concerning Austrian bonds, the main part of which involves $24,055,708.92 due the United States for the flour and other foods sold Austria just after the World War. The contents were not divulged, but it was believed the note rejected a German communication, likewise unpublished, last Monday. (In Washington it was reported the United States insisted Germany must assume the Austrian debt.)

3. The interpretation that a new order by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering against further anti-Jewish street actions meant that foreign boycotts were being seriously into German trade.

Goebbels Voices Complaint

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, in a meeting of the Nazi Federal Culture Chamber, complained that:

"Other countries are defending the Jews in Germany, but unfortunately they do not take them off our hands."

The world-wide drive against Germany is insolent speculation on our proverbial German sentimentality and softness of heart. But we are immune to that now."

He expressed the opinion the former German empire was far too lenient with Jews.

Speeches Broadcast

Speeches by Foreign Minister Count Ciano of Italy, Ratchiro Arta of Japan and Von Ribbentrop were broadcast from their respective capitals affirming the anti-Communist pact and giving pledges to fight to the utmost Bolshevism, which to most Nazis is synonymous with Judaism.

The German and Italian ministers maintained national Socialism was winning all along the line while Arta emphasized, "Germany, Italy and Japan are responsible for the peace of the World; we assure our friends we shall always Willkie Says It Is Impossible To Establish Power "Yardstick" in U. S.

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern corporation's utility empire, contended today it was impossible to establish a "yardstick" by which the rates charged for TVA electric power could be compared with those of privately owned utilities.

Furthermore, he said, in testimony before the joint congressional committee investigating TVA, many "government men" have arrived at that opinion, and some of them have told him so.

Development of a "yardstick" to measure the fairness of private utility rates has been one of the principal announced purposes of the Tennessee Valley authority.

Willkie said also that if there was to be a trend toward government ownership of utilities, a permanent non-partisan board should be established to act as an arbitrator in determining a price at which the government would acquire privately-owned utilities properties.

"If a program of government ownership is to be carried out," he said, "and I for one am not convinced that it will be, then there must be some protection for the investor during that period."

On the stand most of the day, Willkie engaged in many bitter exchanges with Francis Biddle, counsel for the committee, especially over questions involved in the current negotiations for the sale of Commonwealth and Southern properties to TVA.

Once, when Willkie made a remark, he said: "No lawyer would dispute that."

"Here's one who does," Biddle said.

Legislators Seek High Amusement And Luxury Taxes

Associated Press Poll
Shows Trend in Maryland

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP)—A trend toward higher taxes on luxuries and amusements, and nearly unanimous opposition to consumers sales or gross receipts levies, took shape today in first returns from an Associated Press survey of sentiment among members of the 1939 legislature.

Senators and delegates returning early answers to a questionnaire on state affairs lined up approximately five to one against an increase in real estate and personal property taxes and unanimously in favor of continuing the state income tax.

The cross-section of views was far from complete, however, and served merely as a straw in the wind to indicate trends of legislative thought.

Since the 1939 session convening early in January is composed largely of newly-elected, rather than re-elected, members, there were indications a number of individual plans and programs might be forthcoming.

Senator Clifford Friend, reelected Garrett County Republican, had support in his contention no new taxes should be levied but normal running expenses of the state reduced by "at least $1,500,000" annually.

Senator friend also favored continuation of the present one-half of one per cent state income tax and opposed increased real estate taxes, or the levying of gross receipts or sales taxes.

Hungarian Parliament May Be Dissolved

Budapest, Nov. 25 (AP)—Dissolution of the Hungarian parliament for new elections was regarded as a possibility tonight as the regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, weighed the government crisis which resulted in the overthrow of Premier Bela Imred.

Imred gathered substantial support during the day, indicating he may be asked by Admiral Horthy to form another government. He resigned Wednesday because of criticism that he failed to win for Hungary the extreme Eastern Czechoslovak province of Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia).

The crisis was marked today by demonstrations by students and members of youth organizations who smashed windows of several Jewish shops in Budapest.

Coalition Planned To Lower Expenses At Next Congress

Republican Leader McNary Hopes for Wide-spread Support

NEEDS 26 VOTES FROM OPPOSITION PARTIES

Roosevelt Said To Feel Few Democrats Will Desert Him

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Talk of a coalition to curtail government expenditures "vastly" at the next session of congress came today from Senator McNary of Oregon, leader of the election-strengthened Republican ranks in the senate.

"In my judgment," he told reporters, "Republicans will join with other groups to vastly curtail expenditures and bring about a balance between income and outgo. A reduction in government expenditures necessarily challenges the attention of the Republicans."

Need 26 Votes in Senate

(With 23 Republicans in the senate for the coming session—eight more than at present—the party would need 26 votes from Democrats, Farmer-Laborites, Progressives or Independents to have a majority. In the past it has been estimated by some members that 29 or more Democrats could be counted upon to support efforts to reduce government spending.)

The administration itself, now running up a fiscal year deficit of $4,000,000 largely as a result of the winds spending undertaken in the midst of the business slump, is expected generally to propose reduced spending in this field during the next fiscal year beginning July 1, "but increased spending for armament."

Roosevelt Minimizes Danger

McNary's statement was of special interest in view of President Roosevelt's prediction, made shortly after the recent elections that his program would not encounter coalition opposition in the congressional session beginning January 3. To hold anti-New Deal Democrats in line, the president evidently is counting upon the approach of the 1940 presidential election with its threat of Republican victory and

Daladier Prepares To Counter Check Strike Movement

Paris, Nov. 25 (AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier tonight countered a rapidly growing strike movement directed against him by preparing the government to take over affected industries "in case of need."

The premier acted swiftly and defiantly at the end of a critical day in which the strong Socialist party demanded his immediate resignation and the General Confederation of Labor a 24-hour nation-wide general strike of its 5,000,000 members for next Wednesday.

Both moves were in protest against Daladier's decree laws which among other things, suspended the 40-hour week.

With armed mobile guards and police maintaining order among the country's more than 100,000 strikers, the premier fought back at his labor foes by issuing a decree authorizing the minister of public works to requisition strike-paralyzed mines and industries in the North or France "in case of need." The decree will become effective with publication in the official journal, probably tomorrow.

A government spokesman also let it be known that Daladier had taken steps to assure operation of all the nation's public services on Wednesday, the day of the general strike.

Moving hurriedly after issuance of the strike call, Daladier conferred with the military governor of Paris, General Victor Bourret, the Paris prefect of police, Roger Langeron, and with General Jules Decamp, director of his military staff in the ministry of national defense and war.

Printer Swallows Type With Name of His Girl

Budapest, Nov. 25 (AP)—Ferenc Szabo, a printer, found unconscious on the street today later told police at the hospital he had set in type the name and address of his sweetheart and then swallowed the type.

He said he had learned the girl was unfaithful to him. The type he swallowed amounted to 40 characters, including two commas and a semicolon—all washed down with a pint of mild poison, Szabo explained.

"I read about another romantic printer doing this," he said.

Death Toll 70 In Worst Snow And Wind Storm

Most Severe Thanksgiving
Weather in Years
Sweeps Nation

THOUSANDS GET WORK CLEARING HIGHWAYS

Colder Weather Predicted for Midwest
for Today

(By The Associated Press)

The death toll of the first severe wave of the winter—the most severe Thanksgiving weather in many years—stood tonight at approximately 70 for the nation.

Ice-glazed roads, fire and exposure left a trail of death in the Eastern states, whipped by an Arctic storm. Several men collapsed while digging away snow drifts.

Update New York counted 13 dead, the metropolitan area 8, New England 19, New Jersey 8, Pennsylvania 7, the South 5, Ohio 4, Michigan and Indiana 2 each, and Nebraska, Missouri and Maryland 1 each.

Continued cold was the forecast tonight as a large area of the United States lay under a blanket of snow. Slowly rising temperatures were forecast for the week-end.

Thousands Get Work

Washington, D. C., dug out of a 7-inch snowfall—an all-time record for November. Clogged and slippery streets caused 39 accidents.

Thousands of men worked at clearing New York streets from the heaviest snow in November since the weather bureau records began in 1871. Nearly 2,000 pieces of motorized equipment were in use.

Snow covered Atlantic City's boardwalk, and in some New Jersey cities it was heavier than last winter's total snowfall.

Snow Deep in Baltimore

Pennsylvania lay under 4 to 12 inches of snow, a record for November. Western Maryland under 10 inches, and Baltimore under 12—the heaviest for November in 67 years.

In Chicago the mercury hovered between 17 and 20, with a forecast of colder tomorrow. The temperature in Wisconsin ranged from 2 above to the low 20's.

There were snow flurries in Wyoming and Colorado, and a November cold wave bleaker than any

Wilson and Hull Hold Conference On Ocean Vessel

Ambassador and Secretary of State Meet at New

FORMER EXPECTS TO RETURN TO GERMANY

"We Will Return to Duty
Soon" Secretary
Asserts

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—A secretary of Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson said tonight he felt sure "we will return to duty in Berlin soon" as the Ambassador himself, summoned home by President Roosevelt "for instructions," raced by ship, cutter and motor car to a closely guarded 14-minute conference aboard ship with Cordell Hull, secretary of state.

With New York harbor the temporary cross-roads of American diplomacy, the discussion between the ambassador to Germany and his immediate superior was held in closest secrecy.

From here, Wilson prepared to go directly to Washington, departing after midnight, to describe the German situation and the anti-Semitic campaigns to President Roosevelt.

Taken Off Liner

Wilson was taken off the liner Manhattan on a revenue cutter, landed at the battery and sped by automobile along the waterfront to the pier of the liner Santa Clara on which Hull headed the American delegation to the Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru.

The liner Manhattan "poured on the coal" to gain maximum speed so Wilson might meet Hull for their conference before Hull sailed for South America.

AFL Men To Return To Stock Yards In Defiance of CIO

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—A. F. of L. unionists decided today to go to work in the stock yards Monday in defiance of a strike conducted by the C. I. O.

The decision was reached in a conference with O. T. Henkle, general manager of the Union stock yards.

The strike, now in its fifth day and affecting approximately 600 livestock handlers, has halted trade on the greatest meat animal market in the world.

The militant move to resume operations was started by Thomas Devore, business agent of the A. F. of L. stock handlers local. He led about 200 men from the union's hall to the yards. There a committee of 35 conferred with Henkle.

"They said they would bring back between 150 and 400 men," Henkle announced. "They're going back Monday."

A force of 100 policemen was on duty in the yards when Devore and his followers arrived. A few pickets stationed by the handlers under the C. I. O. packing house organizing committee remained on duty.

C. I. O. chieftains offered no immediate comment on developments, previously, spokesmen had threatened to call out 18,000 or 20,000 packing house employees if efforts were made to resume buying and selling of stock before the dispute with the handlers was ended.

President John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. sent the management a message during the day urging a quick conference to settle the controversy.

Fires in Santa Monica and Vicinity Cause Damage of About $5,000,000

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (AP)—Fires in the Santa Monica and San Bernardino mountains continued as serious menaces to property today after having caused possibly $5,000,000 damage already in destruction of homes and watershed protective growth.

For the third time, the fire in the Santa Monica-Brentwood region broke out of control. It threatened to eat its way toward half a hundred expensive homes in Lower Mandeville Canyon, adjoining Brentwood, where live many Hollywood screen players, including Joan Crawford, Shirley Temple, James Stewart, and Pat O'Brien.

Women and Children Evacuated
In the San Bernardino mountains, women and children were evacuated from the village of Crestline.

Firemen believed, however, the flames had been deflected at least temporarily from the village.

The threat to the Mandeville district came from a blaze centering in Sullivan Canyon which fire

Chiang to Review China's Relations With U.S., France

Generalissimo Said To Have Demanded British
Help

Shanghai, Nov. 25 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was reported tonight to be planning a frank review of relation between China and the United States and France to follow up a showdown talk with British Ambassador Sir Archibald Kerr.

In a conference "somewhere in Hunan province," the Generalissimo was said to have delivered to Britain a tacit warning that unless she changed her policy and British help were forthcoming China would be forced to turn elsewhere.

In that event, reliable Chinese sources represented Chiang as saying, British dominance in the still unconquered parts of China would fade away and the nation that provided the needed help would win Britain's place.

Keeps Plans Secret

Sir Archibald arrived in Shanghai today, but would say only that he had found the Generalissimo "well, fit and optimistic."

The Kuomintang (Chinese government party) was scheduled to open an important session at Chungking early next month in which China's foreign relations will be debated and her diplomatic course set.

Chiang, supreme political and military leader of the China still unoccupied by Japan, was said to have urged the British envoy to provide assurances, positive assisting policies and acts before the Kuomintang turns elsewhere.

Will Meet U. S. Envoy

Chiang was reported to have decided on immediate conferences with United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and the French envoy.

The generalissimo also was reported to have told Sir Archibald that the loss of Canton, South China metropolis, on Oct. 1 was largely the result of China's erroneous belief that Britain would intervene in any Japanese threat to South China.

This belief, it was said, had led to a lack in the Chinese defense of Canton.

(The Chinese-Japanese war reached a point four miles East of Hongkong, British crown colony near Canton. The Japanese captured Shatau and were said to be encountering little resistance. The Japanese also reported resumption of a drive westward from Samshui, 30 miles west of Canton.)

Oyster Kills Duck In Choptank River

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP)—Capt. Amas Creighton, commander of Maryland's Conservation Patrol Fleet, told this one today about an oyster killing a duck.

The duck dove after a fish in the Choptank river, hit bottom just as the oyster opened its shell to feed, and was firmly caught when the oyster shell closed on its bill. The duck rose to the surface, but the weight of the oyster pulled its head under water and the duck drowned.

Pope's Condition Is Less Alarming, Noted Specialist Says at Vatican

Outlook Reported as "Encouraging" Several Hours After Collapse
from Heart Attack

Doctors Believe Pontiff
Will Recover If He Does
Not Suffer Another
Attack

Vatican City, Nov. 25 (AP)—Pope Pius XI collapsed today from a heart attack which tonight caused attending physicians to summon a noted heart specialist, Dr. Domenico Cesa-Bianchi, following emergency treatment.

Dr. Cesa-Bianchi went into the Holy Father's simply-furnished bedroom at 9 P. M. (3 P. M., E.S.T.) and remained until 11:20 P. M. When he departed he told persons waiting outside the papal apartment that the 81-year old pontiff's condition was not for the moment alarming.

Condition Encouraging

Shortly before midnight a Vatican source said the pope's condition was "encouraging." About the same time a Vatican news agency said there were no important developments.

The Pope also was visited tonight by an intimate friend, the Jesuit Padre Agostino Gemelli, who was reported to have found the patient's condition "much easier."

Previously physicians had indicated that immediate danger to the Pope's life had passed but his chief physician, Dr. Amintore Milani, remained at or near the side of the narrow brass bed on which the patient lay.

Fear Another Attack

Dr. Milani, who treated the Pope during a grave illness two years ago, said that all depended on "the resistance of the Holy Father's heart." Another attack like that which struck him down shortly after this morning's mass might be fatal, the physician said.

A private source with connections in the Vatican household said the Pope's condition caused serious alarm during the afternoon and again this evening. There was no confirmation of this from attending physicians.

Unconscious An Hour

This source said the Pope suffered three fainting spells about noon (6 P. M., E.S.T.) after which he lay unconscious for an hour. Five hours later, it was said, the patient suffered another relapse which raised fears he was dying.

He was said to have railed before 8 P. M., only to sink again. His physicians were reported to have halted emergency treatment—injections of digitals and adrenalin—leaving the pontiff to rally by his own strength.

After 8 P. M. the Pope was said to be breathing with difficulty and his pulse was rapid. The private informant said hot pads were applied to the hands and feet. Camphorated oil also was used.

Vatican sources said the Holy Father's mind remained active most of the time. He was said to have expressed regret at the cancellation of his appointments today and was quoted as greeting a physician thus:

"Do not think of me. Too many others are suffering today. May God help them all and bring peace to them all."

Oxygen Tent Used

Oxygen was administered by use of an oxygen tent to ease the Pontiff's breathing soon after his collapse at 9:30 A. M. (3:30 A. M., E.S.T.) but the tent was removed when his condition improved.

Anxiety for the Pope was heightened because his heart was weakened

More Employment And New Business Claimed by F.D.R.

President Sees Wide-spread Gains in Many Sections

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt pointed with gratification today to improved business and employment conditions, but warned relief rolls might continue high for some time.

Asked about labor department reports of increased private employment and payrolls, the president told a roadside press conference there was no question that business and job-giving had picked up.

But he added this did not necessarily mean relief rolls would show a corresponding drop immediately, because of several factors.

He explained that last spring there were no jobs for a great many persons out of work because, at the low point, relief spending did not take care of anything like the number of people requiring help.

Thousands Get Employment
Reports on which he was asked to make some observations showed 248,000 had been given employment in mills and factories in October and 900,000 had been re-employed in private industries since June.

Mr. Roosevelt said production in most industries had jumped much faster than the re-employment of labor and this was a problem the administration had had to contend with all along. Population increase was one factor, he added.

He illustrated by saying if (Continued on Page Two)

Saskatoon, Sask., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press)—Hunters returning today from the Hudson Bay junction said a train was delayed nearly 24 hours by a herd of more than 10,000 caribou passing in front of the locomotive.

Hudson Bay junction is east of Prince Albert, near the Manitoba line.

James Roosevelt Upheld in Case Of $850,000 Insurance Account

Boston, Nov. 25 (AP)—Holding that the hope for "favors" had nothing to do with the award of an $850,000 insurance account to a firm with which James Roosevelt was connected, a court-appointed auditor today found that a rival insurance broker had not been "wrongfully deprived" of his commission on the policy.

F. Delano Putnam, the auditor, after five months of study of the evidence, declared that Arthur D. Cronin, the broker, was "not entitled to recover" in his suit against the National Shawmut Bank for $31,750, plus interest.

The lengthy report contained a reference to the election of President Roosevelt in 1933.

In closing arguments, Cronin's counsel pointed out that there "had been a national election" just before the bank turned the handling of the account over to the firm

Berlin Must Pay Austria's Debts, U.S. Note Asserts

Washington Sends Quick Reply to Recent Berlin Claim

Washington, Nov. 25. (AP)—A new note in which the United States is believed to have insisted that Germany is responsible for Austria's debts went forward to Berlin today.

It was a quick reply to a communication in which the Reich is understood to have taken the position that she had no legal obligation to assume the debts.

Today's communication was sent from Washington without even awaiting the arrival of Ambassador Hugh Wilson, who is coming back from Berlin with a comprehensive report on the situation in Germany.

The action called renewed attention to one of the points of difference between the two governments, whose relations have suffered since a critical strain that both have called their ambassadors home.

Approved by Hull

The new American note was approved by Secretary of State Hull in one of his last official acts before departing for New York en route to the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. It answers a German note of Nov. 17 relative to American insistence that Germany assume Austria's indebtedness outstanding in this country when Austria disappeared into the German state last March.

The new American communication was not made public immediately, but informed persons considered it unlikely that the United States had receded from its position that Germany's disclaimer of responsibility was unsound.

Debts Go With Benefits

In an earlier communication, the American government insisted that "in case of absorption of a state the substituted sovereignty assumes the debts and obligations of the absorbed state and takes the burdens with the benefits."

The debt includes $24,055,708.92 advanced to Austria to feed war victims in 1920, about $20,000,000 borrowed by the Austrian government here in 1930, and certain municipal and other bonds held privately here.

Another development with some bearing on German-American relations occurred today when President Roosevelt formally proclaimed new trade treaties with Great Britain and Canada. The president, as is usual, called attention to the fact that Germany is on the American trade blacklist.

Tijuana Menaced By Conflagration

Tijuana, Mex., Nov. 25. (AP)—Fire, fanned by a strong wind, threatened an entire block of stores and cabarets here today.

The flames broke out in the rear of a cafe. Quickly spreading to nearby blocks, the fire raced along the block. More than a dozen establishments were doomed it was feared.

Employees of the various cabarets and stores worked frantically to carry bottled goods and merchandise out into the street, stacking them in huge piles.

The same block was destroyed by fire in 1922, with damage estimated at $250,000.

Trans-America Corp. Faces Disbarment From Exchanges

Washington, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Securities Commission announced tonight that it had ordered a hearing to determine whether the stock of the Trans-America Corporation should be suspended from trading on the New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco stock exchanges.

The commission called a hearing in Washington, January 16 after alleging in a formal order that it had "reasonable grounds to believe that Trans-America Corporation has failed to comply with the provisions of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 in that the applications for registration of Trans-America stock on the exchange) filed by said corporation contain false and misleading statements of material facts, including financial statements of said corporation and its subsidiaries, which do not correctly reflect the true financial condition of the corporation and its subsidiaries."

France and England Will Ask U. S. To Find Haven for German Jews

Paris, Nov. 25. (AP)—A foreign office spokesman said today that France and Great Britain had decided to ask the United States to seek the cooperation of Latin American nations in finding a solution for the problem of Jewish refugees from Germany.

The spokesman said that during the visit of Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax to Paris it was decided that the intergovernmental refugee committee, when it meets in London, must have the full cooperation of states which could offer homes to refugees.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet saw Edwin C. Wilson, United States charge d'affaires, and told him of the French-British decision this afternoon.

Woman Awarded $500,000 Estate

Mrs. Helen Boyle Given Fortune of Late Matilda Bryan

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 25. (AP)—Mrs. Helen Boyle of Baltimore was awarded today the $500,000 estate of her aunt, the late Matilda A. Bryan, one-time "Floradora" girl who held a one-third interest in the Bowie, Marlboro and Thornecliffe race tracks.

Vice chancellor William F. Sooy set aside the claims of 14 other relatives based on a will made in 1937 because, he said, she wanted to keep "them off her neck."

In awarding Mrs. Boyle the estate, he pointed out that Mrs. Bryan had never destroyed the 1934 will and added:

"This proves she was not sure of her final determination in the matter. When she made the 1937 will she became unusually voluble in telling about it to relatives and friends. Up until 1937 the family knew Helen Boyle was the chief beneficiary and it is quite possible that knowledge put Mrs. Bryan on the spot and she made another will to keep them off her neck, as one witness quoted her."

Mrs. Bryan was the type to blow hot and cold and try to dictate other people's lives, and while she may have been displeased with her niece at times, I think she condoned any shortcomings."

Joseph Boyle, husband of the beneficiary under the will, is manager of the Bowie and Marlboro tracks.

Mrs. Bryan made her home here but died in Miami, Fla., last June.

The 1937 will, of which the other claimants presented carbon copies, left the entire estate to the 14 relatives.

Chamberlain, Daladier End Paris Conference

London, Nov. 25. (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain and his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, returned to London from Paris today after two days of talks with Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet which informed persons described as "useful but unlikely to lead to anything sensational."

The parley originally had been planned as a spectacular move along the Munich road to European appeasement, but the current German anti-Jewish drive wrecked the scheme and postponed any fresh approach to Germany.

Chamberlain and Daladier last night in Paris publicly declared their complete accord on national defense and diplomatic collaboration "for the preservation and consolidation of peace." Details were withheld, however. Nor were they disclosed here today.

German Refugees Not To Flood United States

New York, Nov. 25. (AP)—Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the United States Steel corporation, assured a radio audience tonight that international plans to find new homes for German Jews did not involve "flooding" the United States or any other country with refugees.

"On the contrary," Taylor said, "our entire program is based on the existing immigration laws of all the countries concerned, and I am confident that within that framework our problems can be solved."

Present American immigration laws which cannot be changed except by congress permit the entry of 27,230 German immigrants annually.

Tollett To Die In Electric Chair

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 25. (AP)—The state supreme court ruled today that White Miller Tollett of Bledsoe County must die in the electric chair January 11, 1939, for the dynamite slaying of three little girls last January 7 near Elizabethton, Tenn.

Sonia, 9, Luena, 7, and Jean Gouge, 5, were killed when a dynamite explosion wrecked their home in the Hampton community in the early morning hours.

Mrs. Harmon Gouge, mother of the children, was badly injured in the blast but recovered.

The state charged the dynamiting was an abortive revenge plot directed at the father, Harmon Gouge, who had killed Arnold Tollett, a brother of White Miller Tollett. Gouge later was acquitted of this slaying on a plea of self defense.

Blackshirts Active In Many High Schools

Oklahoma City, Nov. 25. (AP)—The school boy chieftain of the Blackshirts "C" said today his organization reached into the high schools of at least seven cities in the nation.

While the leader, "Commissar" Milton Waiser, 17, told his story to county authorities, Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) announced at Washington the ramifications of the secret group might come under the scrutiny of his house committee investigating un-American activities.

Dies said he telegraphed the Oklahoma county attorney for information and whether his house committee would take up the inquiry would depend upon the prosecutor's reply.

Waiser told E. W. Brown, assistant county attorney, the "C" or curiosity club seeking a new economic order had organized in schools in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Seattle, Bridgeport, Conn., Los Angeles and Youngstown, O.

Owner Attempts Suicide When Fire Burns Roadhouse

James Simmonetta Will Recover from Razor Cuts

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 25. (AP)—The loss of James Simmonetta's roadhouse proved almost too much for him and he sadly poked through the ruins for any salvage today while fingering superficial razor cuts on his neck.

A passerby rushed into the living quarters of the roadhouse in suburban Reynoldsville last night to inform the members of the family the roof was on fire. Simmonetta, his wife and three children were eating Thanksgiving dinner at the time.

Deputy Sheriff Arthur Reynolds said that Simmonetta, seeing destruction of the establishment certain, cut his throat with a razor. He was restrained by officers and suffered only minor injuries. Reynolds said.

Simmonetta estimated his loss at $15,000 and said there was no insurance. The two-story structure, built in 1920, was believed to be Harrison county's oldest operating roadhouse.

Lendable Funds At Record High

Washington, Nov. 25. (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board announced tonight that the Lendable funds of the nation's banks were at the highest level in history.

The board said that on November 24 the member banks of the Federal Reserve system had $3,350,000,000 more reserves on deposit in the Federal Reserve banks than required and that all of this was available for lending and investment.

Reflecting the tremendous rise of idle money piling up in the banks as a result of the influx of billions of dollars worth of foreign gold to this country, the excess reserve figure was three times as large as at the beginning of this year.

Because each loan creates a new deposit, part of which may be reloaned by a bank, the total of excess reserves was said by board experts to be the potential base for more than $25,000,000,000 worth of credit.

Main State Highways Are Still Kept Open

Baltimore, Nov. 25. (AP)—Yesterday's heavy snow and sleet storm failed to block a single main highway in Maryland, state roads commission engineers said today.

Several secondary roads were closed by the heavy drifts and one-way traffic was necessary on others, a survey showed, but more than 200 snow plows were in action early throughout the state clearing the primary highways.

Nathan L. Smith, chief engineer of the commission, said a force of about 250 men spent most of today spreading stone dust, ashes and sand on steep grades and on curves to prevent skidding.

In many places, officials said, the roads commission crews spent much of their time rescuing stranded motorists, and hauling their stalled automobiles back onto highways. Use of chains by private drivers would have avoided many of the stalls, commission observers asserted.

The snowfall on the Eastern Shore was estimated at between two and six inches, while depths on the Western Shore ranged from 10 to 15 inches. Road conditions were worst in Frederick and Carroll counties, the commission said.

Coalition Planned To Lower Expenses At Next Congress

Republican control of patronage if the Democrats split.

McNary, here for preliminary conferences with members of his party, predicted that Republicans would strive to increase congressional control over relief funds and to decentralize the administration of relief.

He said the Republicans would oppose further experimentation of the government in untried fields but added that if the Democrats produced a "safe and progressive" program the G. O. P. legislators would go along with them.

Kin of Former Kaiser Expecting The Stork

Doorn, the Netherlands, Nov. 25. (AP)—Princess Kira, wife of Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm, was reported today to be expecting a baby.

The Princess and Louis Ferdinand, oldest son of former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, were married last May 2. They went to the United States during a world honeymoon tour.

Hopkins Seeks To Learn Who Quoted Him on Spending

Washington, Nov. 25. (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, the Works Progress Administrator, asked the New York Times tonight to identify the source of information that he had told an acquaintance, "we will spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect."

Denying for the second time that he ever made the statement, which was attributed to him recently in an article by Arthur Krock, chief of the Times' bureau here, Hopkins said in a letter to the editor of the newspaper:

"I appreciate the fact newspapermen seldom disclose sources of information coming to them. I have not, therefore, previously asked Mr. Krock to disclose the identity of the person from whom the statement allegedly came. On the other hand, however, you have a perfect right, as Mr. Krock's publisher, to ascertain the facts from him. Has not the public now an equal right, without transgressing upon the principle of freedom of the press, to be told who started this unfounded story? Only by identifying the source of Mr. Krock's information can you best serve the cause of truth and justice."

Krock, amplifying a previous reply to Hopkins' charge he was misquoted, said tonight in a dispatch to the Times:

"The friend who quoted Mr. Hopkins as substantially repeated of excellent repute and not at all of hearing. He is at liberty to reveal himself if he so desires. I learned his identity in confidence and that confidence—unless I am released—I shall maintain." ed by his serious illness two years ago.

In that illness, he was confined to his bed on Dec. 5, 1936, for the first time since he became Pope. He suffered paralysis of both legs and did not walk again until February, 1937.

More than four months passed from the beginning of his illness until he was able to appear in public on March 28, 1937, at Easter Mass in St. Peter's cathedral.

Suffered Other Afflictions

Afflictions he suffered then included arterio sclerosis (hardening of the arteries); varicose (swollen) veins; high blood pressure; myocarditis; thrombosis (clotting of the blood) in the left leg; and asthma.

The Holy Father collapsed just as he was leaving his private apartment this morning on his way to an antechamber where he was to have received several cardinals and bishops in private audiences. He had celebrated Mass shortly before.

Papal secretaries saw the Pope overcome by dizziness, sink to the floor. Quickly they carried him to his bedroom and physicians, including Dr. Milani, were summoned. Once he was in bed, Dr. Filippo Rocchi gave him injections of Adrenalin and digitalis.

Condition Slightly Better

The injections were necessary to rally the Pope's weakened heart. Leaving the pontiff's bedside, Dr. Milani said his patient was "slightly better" and had been able to swallow some broth.

"I am optimistic, but all depends on the resistance of the Holy Father's heart," he said.

Another such heart attack might be fatal, the physician said. The two men who would give Absolution and administer Extreme Unction if the Pope were dying went to his apartment—a fact regarded as an indication of the Vatican's alarm.

Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri, chief penitentiary of the church or the cardinal who sets penances for sins, called shortly after the Pope had been given emergency treatment. It would be Cardinal Lauri's office to read a profession of faith to the Holy Father and give him absolution on the approach of death.

Spends Hour With Patient

He also would be among those present at the administration of Extreme Unction. The cardinal remained with the Pope about an hour.

The Pontiff's Sacristan, Mgr. Alfonso Camillo De Romanis, whose duty it would be to administer Extreme Unction, passed two hours in the apartment this afternoon.

Vatican attendants said the Pope talked cheerfully with his doctors in the afternoon. They said he was attended only by his two male nurses from 4:15 p. m., when Dr. Milani left the bedroom, until 7:05 p. m., when the physician returned.

A medical bulletin issued at noon said:

"The Holy Father after celebrating Holy Mass this morning was stricken suddenly with an attack of cardiac asthma. He now is improving."

Ocean City To Get Two New Jetties

Ocean City, Md., Nov. 25. (AP)—Plans to reconstruct two jetties at an estimated cost of $130,000 was announced by Col. William A. Johnson, district engineer.

The original jetties, built in 1935 and 1936, have been effective in confining the channel into Sinepuxent Bay but parts of the jetty have been worn away and much of it has settled below the water line as was expected.

The plans are now being completed in the Baltimore office of the army engineers. A private contractor will be given the contract.

HE LOST TO HOLLYWOOD

Another Hollywood career triumphed over marriage when Harmon O. Nelson, 41, actors' agent, filed divorce in Los Angeles against Bette Davis, screen actress. Nelson, shown with the actress in one of last pictures taken together, said there could be "no reconciliation."

Two Great Danes Escape Execution

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 25. (AP)—Two great Danes escaped trial for their lives on charges of maiming a turkey when Mrs. Charles F. Wright, a farmer's wife, related and said she didn't want to see them killed.

A jury had been called for in county court to try Tina and Lady for their lives under a Kentucky law providing for execution of dogs convicted of killing or maiming any kind of livestock.

Lady reclined quietly at the feet of her master, Adolph Vogie, but Tina, his big black body bulking as big as a six-months calf, ambled around the small court room. He poked a friendly nose into spectator's laps and even nuzzled Mrs. Wright. He finally subdued when his master, George (Bud) McDonald, batted at him with his hat for affectionately chewing at his mate's ear.

American Sales Abroad Ahead of Purchases

Washington, Nov. 25. (AP)—The commerce department indicated tonight that 1938 sales of American merchandise abroad will exceed American purchases of foreign goods by the widest margin in 17 years.

October trade figures, made public today, showed that exports in the first ten months of the year totaled $2,873,045,000 and imports aggregated $1,612,914,000, or an export excess of $960,131,000.

Since exports have run ahead of imports by nearly $100,000,000 a month recently, the year's export excess is expected to be more than $2,611,000,000. Since 1921 there has been only one year, 1928, in which the export excess was more than $1,000,000,000. In 1928 it was $1,036,912,000.

West Virginia To Boost License Fees for Fur Dealers Outside State

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 25. (AP)—The Conservation Commission can charge higher license fees for out-of-state fur dealers if it wants to, the attorney general's office said today.

W. Shawhan, conservation commissioner, disclosed in a letter he hopes to amend the conservation act in January so that license fees will be required of all fur traders but it is intended to make the rate higher for non-residents.

There is no constitutional bar to such a plan, said Assistant Attorney General W. Holt Wooddell in an opinion.

In an opinion for Tax Commissioner Ernest K. James, Wooddell said the law does not give him discretion in enforcement of the five per cent penalty against taxpayers who do not return property for valuation.

James asked whether he had powers of discretion, saying strict enforcement would work hardship on persons unfamiliar with the act.

Attorney General Clarence W. Meadows in another opinion for James said he had authority to make refunds to real estate dealers who have paid two license fees.

The supreme court held a few weeks ago that the act of 1937 creating a real estate commission repealed an older statute under which fees also were required, James had been collecting fees under both acts.

Natalorial Deer Evades Lassoos

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 25. (AP)—Residents near White's Neck Creek resumed loose their lassoos on a large buck deer which was seen swimming from Virginia to Maryland across the Potomac River.

But attempts to catch him proved fruitless. Cutting ropes with sharp fangs, the animal cleared timber fences and escaped into the wooded upper section of the county.

Gypsy Rose Lee Called to Face Dies Committee

Dancer Will Be Asked Hollywood Activities

Cleveland, Nov. 25. (AP)—Two members of the Dies congressional committee, investigating alleged Communist activities in Ohio schools, today summoned Gypsy Rose Lee for testimony about a Hollywood campaign to raise money for the Spanish Loyalist government.

Committee Harold Mosier (D-Ohio), who with Rep. Noah Mason (R-Ill.) is conducting the inquiry here, telephoned Miss Lee at Columbus, where she is doing a striptease act.

Let him know later if she could appear, Mosier said.

The Ohio representative and Mason questioned a number of persons associated with Cleveland schools, and a student at Western Reserve University, but declined to tell who they were. Four or five of those quizzed, Mosier said, may appear later before the full committee in Washington.

"We don't want anybody putting the pressure on them before that time," Mosier said.

Will Interview Students

The Western Reserve student, Mosier asserted, told him about campus activities of the American student union, which the congressman described as a "Communist front" organization. He said he would interview students and instructors from other colleges in Ohio.

Gypsy Says She Will Not Go To Cleveland

Columbus, O., Nov. 25. (AP)—Gypsy Rose Lee, the strip tease artist, said tonight she could not go to Cleveland to appear before members of the Dies committee on un-Americanism, but promised with a jittery laugh, "I'll bare everything—if the committee will come to Columbus."

She said she was asked to testify as to Communist activities in Hollywood. "Maybe we did give parties out there to raise money for poor kids and women in China and Spain," she said. "Is that un-American? I thought it was the American creed to help the down-trodden."

Miss Lee wondered, "Will I really have to go if they subpoena me?"

A reporter said "yes."

"Well, it's the first time I ever got biling with Shirley Temple—and I think it's marvelous," Miss Lee riddled. (The child actress was mentioned once in connection with the Dies investigation.)

Miss Lee arranged herself for a photographer, protesting:

"No knee, it's un-American!"

Defeated by 18 Votes, Charles M. Fontaine Seeks Ballot Recount

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 25. (AP)—Charles M. Fontaine, Westover farmer and defeated Democratic candidate for county commissioner, petitioned the Somerset county circuit court today for a recount of 18-vote setback.

In the official tabulation of ballots cast in the Nov. 8 elections, Fontaine's Republican opponent, W. Clyde Ford, Jr., also of Westover, was declared elected, 3,535 votes to 3,517.

This margin upset the unofficial count, which showed Fontaine elected by 65 votes. The difference of approximately 100 votes showed up in the official tally of ballots from Dublin and other districts.

Relief Total Not Given

The president refused to indicate the size of the relief appropriation for the remaining four months of this fiscal year or the next fiscal period beginning July 1, 1939. This must await his messages to congress in January.

The appropriation for the first eight months of the current fiscal year was $1,425,000,000. Relief officials have been told this must last until March 1, 1939.

The president drove his manually-operated open car up to the press cottage to talk with the reporters. Mrs. Roosevelt stood for a while beside the car, but got in a rear seat before the conference was over.

Light Bulb Explodes

A photographer's flash light bulb exploded, showering glass over the car. The president dismissed the incident with a smile, saying it was not the cameraman's fault.

Mr. Roosevelt would make no further comment on the Jewish refugee question. Hugh R. Wilson, ambassador to Berlin, will be here Sunday or Monday to talk about the German situation, he said.

Told there was six inches of snow in Washington, he laughed and remarked his trip to Warm Springs was well-timed.

This afternoon the president drove 25 miles to make his annual visit to the Pine Mountain Valley Resettlement Project.

SIX WAYS TO LOSE HER

The Ever-Present Green-Eyed Monster

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage. Copyright, 1938

As this column has so often pointed out, to be jealous is to admit distrust of one's self.

The victim of the green-eyed monster is fearful that someone—someone better, handsomer, richer, more clever, or with more advantages, will be able to snatch something he prizes highly. This prized possession may be his wife, sweetheart, job, influence, his popularity.

Meantime, he lives in a state of shuddering dread that the best man may win. He hates; he feels inferior. Intolerance of rivalry has its roots in fear.

Crimes of passion thrive in jealous soil. In the allegedly civilized, it has prompted such heinous crimes as mutilation. You doubtless remember the case involving a physician a few months ago.

Recognized by Law
The law recognizes this most primitive of emotions, and while it does not condone the temporary madness which it induces, it has recognized a vague plea known as "the unwritten law."

A curious phase of sex jealousy is that when the madness has run its course, even to the extent of murder committed, the insanely jealous person seems to lose interest in the individual for whose sake he committed the crime.

Take the recent case of a "perfect husband." The seemingly unoffending man was so insanely in love with his wife that in addition to being a model, he did all the housework. He not only loved to do it, but was a human doormat as well. Far from appreciating a devotedly loving husband, who did the chores of a maid-of-all-work, the bored wife gave her affections to a gentleman who quoted poetry and was flagrantly unfaithful to the model husband who scrubbed floors, cooked meals. Even his mother-in-law said he was perfect and testified in his favor at the trial. At last the woman turned.

First in the State
The wife was the first woman in Illinois history to testify against her husband in a major criminal trial. A law which had prohibited a wife from jeopardizing her husband was amended last year.

True to the sex jealousy complex, after the abused husband had murdered his rival, he announced to the papers he was through with his wife. A dozen other cases come to mind, where complete indifference to the adored followed a crime of passion.

Stepmothers and stepfathers have been violently jealous of the children of their predecessors. Children locked in dark rooms, abused, even murdered, have been the victims of jealous hatred. "Mean" stepmothers and stepfathers are at the bottom of that tremendous number of youngsters who disappear yearly, while boys enlist in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps under assumed names to escape unhappy homes, presided over by these step-parents.

Never Knew Jealousy
Lilly Langtry, one of the most beautiful women on the Edwardian era, confessed she never had known a pang of jealousy in her life. Why should she? Universally acclaimed "the most beautiful woman in the world," sought after by "all" the eligible men in London, she had no reason to be jealous. Going back a little further, the same was true of Lord Byron, who had only to limp through a room, to have all the women fall for his Apollo-like beauty. Byron wondered what the emotion of sex jealousy could be like.

The peculiar jealousy of young wives towards husbands' mothers is another curious quirk of the green-eyed monster. Sometimes, it's the other way around, and mothers-in-law are jealous of the young wives. Downright jealousy is at the bottom of so much criticism: Literary, artistic, dramatic. The critic who never gets anything across is the one who makes merry at the other fellow's success. All said and done, the green-eyed monster is about the unloveliest trait of human nature.

Change to New Hairdress Not Easy

her hairdress is original, distinctive.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR stylists have talked themselves rosy in the face trying to put over the little hairdress. Yet, the page boy bob persists. That's all right if the face is young and hair luxuriant. If the birthdays have brought along evidence in the form of thin lines, we do think the elevated hairdo is more appropriate. It has charm, dignity, elegance and style.

The change from dangling locks to tresses anchored atop the brain container is not easy. The hair has been accustomed to its downward way and is bound to be rebellious. That's why many women have tried out the new mode and have given it up as a bad job. If they'll keep on long enough, their wool will be accustomed to the new order, and it will stay put.

Charming combs are offered, all sorts of little shell gadgets that keep over the top of the head. A valance along the nape line. Hair must be at least four inches long before it is possible to build the high coil.

Are you sitting pretty? The feet should be placed flat on the floor, fairly close together. In that your manner of disposing of them? It isn't what every girl does. Some twine their feet around chair legs. Some toe in, others turn the foot sideways. Horrid habits.

Sit far back in the chair. Keep a neat nip in at the back portion of the waistline. Have the chest high, tummy flat. Not like a ramrod, you understand. The figure should be vibrant, but at ease.

If every member of this beauty class would be figure conscious, hold herself beautifully and walk with spirit, it would be a long step toward the beauty goal.

HAVE YOU any beauty problems? Let the Beauty Box Editor help you solve them. Address all inquiries regarding beauty to the Editor of the Beauty Box, care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose an addressed, stamped (three cents) envelope for reply.

Play Places For Pupils Needed

But We Ought to Train Them Not to Destroy School Grassy Plots.

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

YOU AND I have often said that children are more to be desired than grass. We want more places where children may play. We need more playgrounds for children at school and for children at home.

We also need to train our children to use the playground they have. And we need more grass. Beautiful plots of grass and shrubs in front of school buildings and homes are very desirable, and children who learn to keep off these plots at play are learning good character and citizenship. It's too bad college students have so little regard for campus greens.

Choose Playground
If, however, it is a choice, as it must be in some instances, between a school playground and a beautiful plot of green, have the playground by all means. But if, as usually is possible, there can be both grass and adequate playground, children who don't learn to be very careful of the grass are learning bad citizenship.

A few homes should have play places in the front rather than grass. Most, however, can have the play space back of the house. Anyway, there are very few town and city homes with ground plots large enough for children to play running games and ball games freely without trespassing on a neighbor. And when your child and mine trespass on our neighbor, these children are losing in character far more than they gain.

When we are wiser and care more about the welfare of our children, we will see that there are one or several large community play places in every block, and that our children play there.

Train Children

I wish school authorities who have provided ample playground would train children at school in being careful of the grass and shrubs about the school building. I wish parents would do so in respect to their own lawns and the lawns of their neighbors.

One morning recently I was on my way to speak before a state teachers' convention. My host was a school principal. He took me to see his building. As we entered I admired the landscaping. Then he said that children skating on the front sidewalk had destroyed some of it and (apologetically) that they are now forbidden to do so until they can learn to be careful. Then he showed me a skating place in the rear of the building and a spacious playground. "You are right," was my remark.

And I saw some conduct slogans and proverbs on the walls of one classroom. They are coming back they should. Not all the old is bad nor all the new the best.

Now is the Time to Figure the WHOLE COST of GUARANTEED All-Winter Protection against BOIL-AWAY, FREEZE-UP and RUST

Find Your Car Here

$2.95 A GALLON

COLD WAVE COMING!

Freezing temperatures within twenty-four hours, says Weather Man

You've got to do something about your car at once... one of two things:

1. Take a chance with ordinary boil-away anti-freeze that will need replacement as the weather seesaws back and forth and motor heat brings the radiator solution above its boiling point.
2. Give your car the proper protection from the beginning and free yourself from worry and uncertainty all winter long.

Better be sure, better be happy, better be thrifty with "Eveready" "Prestone" anti-freeze. It's guaranteed in writing.

FIND YOUR CAR ON THIS CHART

IMPORTANT! The price per gallon of an anti-freeze means nothing unless you know how many gallons you will need during the entire winter. You can't get that information on a boil-away anti-freeze. But you can get it for "Prestone" anti-freeze... and here it is. See how reasonably you can get two-way protection all winter long against both freeze-up and rust formations with one shot of "Prestone" anti-freeze—one shot because it won't boil off, no matter how warm the weather gets between the cold snaps. If your car isn't on this chart, your dealer has a chart showing all cars; and amounts needed for temperatures to 60° below zero.

Find your car and read from left to right. The first figure shows the protection you get with one gallon of "Eveready" "Prestone" anti-freeze in the cooling system; the second with one and a half gallons; and so on. "4+" means above zero. "—" means below zero. If your car has a hot water heater, add 1/2 gallon to the quantity called for.

War Scare Brings Big Trailer Business

London (AP) — One effect of the recent war scare has been to create an increased demand for "caravans," trailers to you.

Manufacturers and dealers have been inundated with inquiries for quick delivery and stocks have been cleared out.

Those people who already owned caravans and normally lay them up for the autumn and winter, moved them out to safe places in the country in readiness for an emergency.

Largely because of wet weather early in August, ebbs blight was more serious than usual in New York state. Red kidney beans suffered considerably both in quality and yield.

A Frederick Stink Bomb

ALL is not well with the Democratic organization over in Frederick county, according to the current issue of the New Citizen, the weekly published by David C. Winebrenner, III, which declares that there should be an investigation of certain rather odorous suspicions that appear to abound concerning the recent election, and that the rink and file of the party as well as the public should know where it stands.

"Those particularly interested in the welfare of the party—the candidates and office holders and others who contribute funds to the campaign chest—are entitled to know who used the money and in what manner," says the New Citizen.

"If there was treachery within the councils of the party," it continues, "if the campaign funds were used other than in the best interests of all candidates, everyone should know all about it."

"Evidence already gathered implicates some of those who worked at the polls on November 8, supposedly in behalf of the entire Democratic ticket. The finger of suspicion has been directed toward some who hold public posts by virtue of appointments of Democratic officials."

"While party leaders recognize the independence of the average voter to cast his or her ballot as judgment dictates, they also hold that persons using party funds and holding positions under Democratic officials are obligated to work for the best interests of the entire party ticket."

"In reaching a decision to carry on a thorough investigation of individual and factional activities in the recent election, the Democrats are moving in the right direction. They can hope to beat down disloyalty in no other way. It is only by revealing behind the scenes trickery that the Party can hope to establish any security in its position."

"It is the feeling of those sincerely interested in the welfare of the Democratic party in Frederick county that it is better to return to the former position of minority party than labor under false impressions."

One can sympathize with the righteous indignation of one party member or group who may have been denied access to the party funds while some other member or group got the privilege of spending it; but it may be said that the latter suggestion by the New Citizen can be viewed with the utmost complacency by Allegany Republicans so far as party management is concerned and even with much enthusiasm in regard to governmental management.

Let's Keep Our Feet On the Ground

THE SUGGESTION made in Mark Sullivan's dispatch printed elsewhere on this page that more attention should be given to resistance of insidious propaganda efforts in this country is quite to the point. Perhaps if more money were spent on efforts of that kind than on too enormous spendings for armament it would be better.

A thing which should be kept in mind in connection with a gigantic armament program is where the money is to come from to pay for it. "Here," pertinently observes the Wheeling Intelligencer, "is a nation already wallowing in a debt of forty billion dollars; a nation close to economic paralysis because of the tremendous load of governmental expense and the policy of operating on constantly growing deficits. And it is proposed that we not only add to this burden a debt which would dwarf what we now owe, but that we undertake to finance other countries as well. The upshot of any such enterprise as this would be complete domination of the economic structure by government; a tremendous increase in the public personnel and the cost of ordinary governmental operations, and a burden of debt which would enslave the American people for generations."

The Wheeling newspaper notes that nothing has been produced to indicate that the naval construction program now under way, and the steps already taken to strengthen our arms, will not provide all the military force for which we could have any legitimate use. No American will deny the need for adequate home defense, nor raise any serious objection to paying for just that, but, as the Intelligencer says, we should keep our feet on the ground and not permit the oversteering of an emergency to lead us into unwarranted spendings, nor as Sullivan suggests, to overlook the more important work that faces us.

Speed the Christmas Spirit

NOW that the Thanksgiving holiday season is over, it is in line for people to look forward to the great annual Christmas observance. A great many do not seem to be aware that this event is practically just around the corner. Some of them are just lost souls who will go through the season without ever knowing it has been here. They are quite hopeless, and we will have to give them up. But the great masses get a spiritual stimulus out of the biggest holiday period of the year, and to make it more enjoyable and of greater benefit to all, it would be just as well for everybody to begin now to imbibe a bit of the Yuletide spirit.

There are already reminders of it by the dozens. In downtown Cumberland one sees Christmas in the swelling and hurrying crowds, in the quickening tone of holiday conversation, in the holiday decorations one sees in the various store windows and going up in the main streets, where the enterprising merchants are developing a new and most attractive holiday decorative scheme. Signs of approaching Christmas are many and colorful, and they make the two or three weeks before the day itself a period of anticipation and excitement like no other in the year. People who let it go by unnoticed are people to be pitied.

The Christmas season this year is in a number of ways several jumps ahead of its recent predecessors. Nobody ever saw so many people downtown, may of them apparently from out of town come to the stores to do their Christmas shopping. All the stores are full and predicting record sales. The post office is more than holding its own.

All such matters fire us with great amounts of enthusiasm. We are the original Christmas fan, and have acquired our Christmas spirit even if the shopping must wait until later. It is a feeling, we think, which is eminently more satisfactory when shared with others. In the Christmas season, as in no other, it is better to give than to receive, even if one's only gift is a part of the feeling for Christmas. In a Christmas when many people will be happy, it is unfortunate that not everyone will be. In Cumberland, at any rate, make their number as small as it can be.

Still Doing Pretty Well

FACTS AND FIGURES thus far available fail to furnish any hint of the day when, as several observers of the population trend persist in predicting, the great democracies will see not only a halt in population growth but perhaps even a sharp decline. The nations specifically noted in the pronouncements of the oracles are the United States, Great Britain and France. The first thought that occurs to the laymen who sit at the feet of the statisticians is: "Why specify democracies?" and the second is, "Upon which of your own tables of figures do you base your predictions?"

This is a situation in which one statistician is aligned against another, a situation which must provide a chortle for those among us who never were much good in mathematics, to say nothing about soothsaying.

The latest report available from the census bureau at Washington shows an increase of more than 7,000,000 in the population of the United States since the decennial census of 1930, which in turn showed an increase of 17,000,000 over the previous census of 1920, a growth of 24,000,000 in eighteen years, during the latter part of which period there has been a limitation on immigration.

At the moment, it is not easy to know what calamity the calamity howlers are forecasting, but so far facts and figures do not point to a decline in the population of the United States.

There is talk of demobilizing the WPA at some future date, as its political effectiveness is believed to have been overrated. Separating the leaner and the shovel will be as delicate a process as the old game of jackstraws.

Scientists are nearing success in the search for a temperature of absolute zero. But hasn't that goal already been achieved by the college coach whose team didn't win a game?

Too many people die twenty years before they are buried, says William Lyon Phelps, of Yale. He must have been watching someone with a hangover.

It is found in Britain that a gas mask is no good to a wearer with a heavy beard. To be on the safe side, Santa Claus must send a white flag on ahead.

The big-hearted government has tried its hardest, and still nothing it gives the American can equal what he can go out and get for himself.

The Browser on Books

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The Browser was surprised to read that Pearl Buck had been awarded the Nobel Prize for literature. So, he thinks, were crowds of other readers and writers, including Pearl Buck herself. . . . The Browser has great respect for Pearl Buck, although to speak the truth he has never in his life thought of her as a great writer. But she is a woman of profound feeling for life and human beings, she has a clear, brave mind, and she is one of the best of the human breed. She thinks before she writes and writes what she thinks. . . . So it is possible that her powers emerge undiminished, even enhanced, in translation. Which is probably why she won the Nobel Prize against the claims of other writers who turn out more perfectly polished sentences but have less feeling, less intelligence, less to say.

The Browser refers you to another prize-winning novel, "Young Doctor Galahad" (Dodd Mead & Co.) Mrs. Elizabeth Seifert won a $10,000 prize with this novel, and for once a prize winning manuscript was worth the prize, even though Mrs. Seifert has little talent for recreating life-and-blood human beings. But she does know her subject, which is the medical profession, and if you're thinking of giving this book to a doctor for Christmas be sure to inquire beforehand as to his opinions on "corporate medicine." Some doctors will like the book, others will toss it fiercely through the nearest window. Mrs. Seifert, married and the mother of four children, lives in a little town in Missouri, but she was for years on the staff of a large hospital and she knows doctors and their problems and what they think and believe. . . . Her hero is a young doctor, in an excellent rural hospital that is disliked by the "fumbler and muddlers" of the medical profession in that district, who have not kept up with the advance of their science and who gang together to conceal each other's inadequacies.

"Their sort" (says the author) were men caught in a vicious circle, forced to work overtime in order to meet a relatively high fixed cost of expenses. Money pressure and fatigue left them very little time—and gradually eroded all inclination—to keep themselves abreast of their profession. After all, they were operating a business in a society which maintained dollars uppermost in every mind. Sooner or later they were bound to think like businessmen and, with money paramount, the patients' needs necessarily became second concerns. . . . So naturally there was a vast cleavage between them and Dr. Tony (Galahad) McNeill, his superior Dr. Gordon, who owns the hospital, and Dr. Tom Flannery, also on the staff. Flannery also understands the situation. Says he: "It's just that I'm caught—every doctor is caught—the fantastic ethical pretensions of medical science and the actualities of American life. A frank book in which every problem from stupid diagnoses to criminal abortion is discussed. The Browser was glad to see his two young daughters reading it."

He recommends a quite different book by a Frenchman named Norbert Casteret, whose hobby and profession have made him a human gopher of him. In "Ten Years Under the Earth" (Graystone) he tells of his fantastic adventures in underground caverns of the Pyrenees. Descriptions of carvings, sculptures, drawings of bears, bison and reindeer, underground streams, perilous adventures, amazing discoveries, told without boasting or over-emphasis—this fills the pages of a fascinating and unique book. . . . But the Browser has no desire to emulate that bold, cold, Casteret. He'll let him do his OWN underground browsing. The earth surface is fascinating enough for Marsh Maslin.

THE BROWSER.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

So, at last, they totally obliterated the Jews from the face of the earth. The last few hundred thousand were taken to sea in old merchant boats, packed in cages and locked up tight, and when the rusty flotilla reached the appointed spot, far down in the South Atlantic, the crews and sailors opened the cocks, abandoned ship and made for the vessels of the International Navy, which took them aboard and opened fire with their guns.

It was like shooting barnyard ducks. In less than an hour it was done. The mopping up was simple but thorough. Picket boats went among the wreckage with sharpshooters in their bows to pick off the few half-conscious floaters who had been blown free by the explosions and had grasped fragments of furniture, doors and beams. There was not one Jew left on earth, not one, and the remaining peoples of the world sighed with relief and said, "Now we shall have peace and progress and no more lying, cheating, conspiracy or theft."

The property of the Jews was distributed according to promise, and there was now no reason why the people should fail to prosper and get along as friends.

Hard to Tell Friend from Foe

Yet there were alarms, and complete trust and cooperation were lacking. The Japanese had united the Asiatics and were moving against the Russians. The Germans attacked the Poles to rescue an oppressed minority on the Sudeten precedent and Mussolini pounced on Great Britain's lifeline because, even though they were indubitably Aryans, the British were arrogant, cunning and acquisitive and honor was not in them.

"The Englishman," little Italian soldiers wrote on the blackboards in their schools, "is the scourge of the earth and must be destroyed."

These moves pitched the world into a general war in which it was difficult for any individual to distinguish friend from foe. The French fought the Germans with the slogan that there could never be permanent peace as long as any German lived and verified the slogan to themselves by quotations from Hitler's book to the effect that France must be destroyed.

The Americans held off a while, but finally pitched in against the Japanese, and the jungle became so confused that a bomber could unload his bombs almost anywhere outside his own country and find justification in some evil and menacing trait of the people living there.

Not only that, but within the warring countries individual and group hatred grew. There were still greed, lying, cheating, treachery and theft. Men swindled one another, circulated evil rumors, conspired for power, failed to pay their bills, seduced maidens, robbed and stole. God had seemed to have the measure of their moral frailty, but they had always told themselves that it was the Jews alone to whom the Ten Commandments were addressed. With the Jews gone they thought the Ten Commandments would become superfluous if not even a little insulting—a sort of insinuation that even they were not above the sort of conduct for which the Jews, of course, were peculiar and notorious.

The Africans were wiped out early. In Asia starvation and disease destroyed millions, but the Western nations were no better off. They could feed themselves better, they knew more of sanitation, but their weapons were much more deadly.

An Eden Without Adam and Eve
Still the world fought on long after the last Jew had gurgled beneath the waves until just two small bands were left, the freckle-faced people and the none-freckled, each claiming to be pure and to possess exclusively the virtues of honesty, honor and clean blood and each sworn to exterminate the other as the only guarantee of peace, progress and decency on earth.

It ended with just two survivors, an old man and an old woman, together in a hut. He was one-eighth freckle-faced. She was of the pure, none-freckled strain.

So one night she slugged him with an ax as he slept and fell dead of the poison he had put in her soup that evening. And the horses and asses romped in the fields, never deer to be beaten or overburdened; deer walked in the open, unafraid of being shot by men; rabbits and birds took courage, cities moldered and the world was purified of greed, dishonesty, treachery and cruelty.

THE EIGHT HUNDRED AND FIFTY - FIRST RESCUE OF LITTLE STANLEY THE EXPLORER

Chief Need of America is Not Arms But Resistance of a Dangerous Idea

Trade Reciprocity

From the Johnston, Pa., Democrat

Undoubtedly there is much that is good and some things that are bad, from the American point of view, in the reciprocal trade pacts signed by the United States and Great Britain and Canada. Soft coal producers in the United States, in particular, will not find encouragement in the announcement that coal will continue to be brought into this country from Canada duty free, while the Canadian government will continue to levy duties on our bituminous coal and coke.

On the other hand, American wheat, corn and fruit growers appear to have made outstanding gains from the British treaty. Great Britain abandoned a six-cent-per-bushel empire preference tariff against our wheat, and the corn belt was favored by concessions on lard, hams and other pork products.

The British have been favored in the treaty by concessions on whiskey, textiles and manufactured metal goods.

The fear of some financiers that depression of the British pound sterling would enable Great Britain to flood the American market with cheaply priced merchandise further favored by tariff concessions apparently is removed by an "escape clause," which would permit quick reexamination of the treaty structures in the light of excessive fluctuations of one party's currency in relation to the other. The entire agreement could then be terminated after 30 days notice if currency issues were not quickly adjusted.

It is anticipated that the United States will now extend trade reciprocity farther into South America and that soon all of the nations which this country has found it advantageous to deal with will be embraced within reciprocal trade treaties similar to those just concluded with Great Britain and Canada. A notable exception will be Germany, which now stands alone as the major nation entirely outside the circle of those sharing in some degree in reciprocity programs.

It is the only language of protest that the Nazis can be made to understand.

How To Get New Ideas

From Your Life Magazine

Get over the fence and into other people's field regularly. It is a dynamo for getting new ideas.

If the same people have been coming to your house for the past year the "regulars" are probably as bored as you are.

If your friends are all business men, meet a doctor, a lawyer, or a college professor or two.

If you're a doctor, vary the medical shop-talk by bringing home an advertising man or someone in the publishing business.

Did you ever wonder how an aviator looked at close range? Meet one and find out. They seldom bite.

By shifting or enlarging a circle of friends to include people who work in other fields, ideas can be picked up which may have an amazing usefulness for our own bread-winning.

It is "inductive-mental" suicide to have most of our associations with those who have the same interests and work that we do.

BY MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, Nov. 25.—Several present activities of the administration are designed for defense against Nazi-Fascism. That is, they are designed against Nazi-Fascism coming from abroad. Our expansion in armament is designed to defend the United States, and also the whole American continent, against any future threat; that might arise from the Nazi-Fascist group of nations—Germany, Japan and Italy. No one anticipates that any of these nations, singly or in combination, would attack the United States within any foreseeable time. But conceivably they might attack a South or Central American country—either attack it in a military sense, or seek to impose their will on it by other means.

The Nazi-Fascist nations are in alliance. As an alliance they are stronger than any other alliance of nations. All three—Germany, Japan and Italy—are engaged in territorial expansion. Preparedness by the United States against danger to Latin America is clearly called for.

Active In Latin America

In addition to military preparedness, the United States is engaged in measures for defense against the spread of Nazi-Fascism as an idea. The Nazi-Fascist nations are actively spreading their principle of society and government in several Latin American countries, by propaganda, by trade, by various devices of infiltration. Against this, we are strengthening the ties between ourselves and the Latin American nations, for preservation of the democratic form of government and society which we devised a hundred and fifty years ago and which every Latin-American nation later adopted.

We are taking these steps against Nazi Fascism for the reason that Nazi-Fascism is on the march. We are taking no similar measures against Communism, because Communism is not, at this time, on the march—that is, not in any military sense. Any expectation the Soviet Union may have had to expand by the methods of military force or territorial annexation is for the present vain. Russia is bottled up by the Nazi-Fascist nations.

More Than Military

But Nazi-Fascism and Communism are each something more than military forces. Primarily they are ideas. And as ideas, Communism is as much a threat to America as Nazi-Fascism. It would be unfortunate if, in our measures of military defense against Nazi-Fascism, we should overlook the necessity for defense of another kind, against Communism. Of the two threats, Nazi-Fascism as an idea and Communism as an idea, the latter is rather the greater to the United States.

The two, Nazi-Fascism and Communism, are equally odious to America. Indeed the two, much as they hate each other, are largely identical. A distinguished American speaks of Nazi-Fascism and Communism as "blood-brothers." Actually the relation between them is that of parent and child.

Communism came first. It established itself in Russia in 1917. Immediately it sought to establish itself in other countries. (Among other efforts, the Communist heads in Russia sent money and agents to the United States for the purpose of inciting destruction of our form of government and society, including what the Communist heads dreamed of as a "black uprising in the south.")

Failed Elsewhere

In no country outside Russia did Communism succeed in establishing itself. In some countries it did succeed to the stage of creating the chaos and paralysis which is the preparation for Communism. But at this stage, events took an unexpected turn. In Italy, Mussolini set up an alternative which he called Fascism. In Germany, Hitler set up an alternative, practically identical with Fascism but called Nazism.

Nazi-Fascism is the direct consequence of Communism. It practices the same technique as Communism, adopts the same forms. The principal difference is that while Communism denies the right of individuals to own property, Nazi-Fascism preserves it. But today the Nazi-Fascist right to own property is trimmed down to where it amounts to little. Other than this distinction, Nazi-Fascism and Communism are much the same. Both practice the authoritarian form of government, both practices mass persecution, mass execution. Both persecute religion. As sometimes happens, the offspring Nazi-Fascism carries the parent's methods to greater extremes. But everything that Germany does, it learned from Russia.

Still Taught Here

When Communism started in Russia, before its methods and consequences became apparent, some in America saw it, most fatuously, as a step toward economic utopia. For twenty years, some American teachers in colleges, writers, intellectuals, and others, carried on propaganda for Communism. The movement still exists and is powerful. It is present in some colleges and schools, some churches, some labor organizations. The Communist philosophy of society is present in some quarters of our government, held by persons who either think they can bring about the so-called and utterly illusory economic quality of Communism without the attendant violence and persecution, or who don't care if the violence and persecution come.

Against this danger of Communism, the United States needs defense as vigorous as that which we are undertaking against Nazi-Fascism. (Copyright, 1938)

It Still Holds Good

From the Elkins, W. Va., Intermountain

A large insurance company conducted a newspaper campaign in New York City a few years ago in which it spent seventeen thousand dollars and wrote up one million dollars in insurance during the brief time the campaign was on.

At a convention at Atlantic City, insurance men were urged to go in form vigorous newspaper advertising campaigns built up in a manner similar to those conducted by motion picture companies.

The old idiom, it pays to advertise, still holds good.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

It is 48 years since Sven Hedin started back-trailing Marco Polo. It is quite possible that the historic effect of his travels will surpass the fabulous adventures whose survey of the great transchina road has made Japan's task of strangling China so difficult.

It was in 1893 that the Chinese commissioned Dr. Sven Hedin to begin the survey. And now many hundreds of motor trucks move night and day, bringing in supplies from the Russian border-village of Chuguchak, along the old "Silk Road" of many centuries ago. The road is a new artery of life for China as the blockade clamps down on the coast—the Road to Samarkind.

Dr. Hedin's new book, "The Silk Road," tells the tale of his first two years of danger and hardship in spying out the old caravan routes which were old long before the days of Marco Polo. The book takes its place with "The Conquest of Tibet," "Across the Gobi Desert," and other fascinating tales by glamorous explorers.

Confession Denied

As Marco Polo lay dying in the Piazza San Marco, in the thirteenth century, his spiritual mentors implored him to confess and denounce his fantastic tales of the Far East. Almost in his last breath, he whispered, "I have not told the half of what I have seen."

Dr. Hedin has told the other half. He was in Tibet two years ahead of Colonel Younghusband. He adventured in disguise into the forbidden land. In the year 1896 he established his headquarters in the Khotan oasis, for a drive into the island of the hermits—"The Island of the Blue Lake." It was cupped in a rim of snow-covered peaks, rising 10,000 feet from the level plain. The hermit, Sampho Singhi, had no trousers, but he had a hand-bag caught in his belt which contained pipes, tobacco and a large pair of tweezers. Every few days he plucked his beard with the tweezers.

Dr. Hedin was captured many times by bandits, stumbled through long, hot, dry desert leagues to a green oasis. His companions died of thirst on the trail. But he had a ringside seat at blood-curdling devil dances, escaped death by an eyelash in Himalayan blizzards and blistering hot sands, and threaded his pious way back into long-forgotten centuries where time stands still.

As arresting as H. Rider Haggard, his travel narratives are nevertheless precise, never over-written, never dressed up and never chattering—always interesting, always superbly reported. His competent sketches augment the interest and value of his travel tales, and those little drawings, on occasion, saved his life. No man from Mars could have been more of a strange intruder than this white man in Tibet. It happened there, a bit of swift and elaborate sketching of local celebrities allayed suspicion and established a basis for friendship.

Unheard-of Thing

In Dr. Hedin's youth, he had planned to be an Arctic explorer, but at the age of 20 went to Baku, on the Caspian Sea, as a school-teacher. Baku, gateway to the Orient, stirred his interest in the East. His first adventure was a journey through Persia and Mesopotamia on horseback, an unheard-of thing in those days.

After three years in post-graduate studies at the University of Upsala and in Germany, he began a fascinating series of expeditions which have so vastly enriched our knowledge of old Asia. He grounded himself thoroughly in the sciences, and that, he believes, has served him more than anything in validating his explorations.

Rounding 70 he is still vigorous, still intent on picking out the jig-saw puzzle of dark centuries. With his close-cropped hair, his guardsman's moustache, and his calm and precise manner, he is anything but romantically—but there is an other-worldly look in his strange drooping eyes, behind his thick-lensed glasses.

End Foreseen

And what does he see ahead in Asia? He says just this: "The reign of the white race in the East is coming to an end. Japan soon will dominate the Orient. Destiny seems to be driving man blindfolded to the abyss."—Copyright, 1938.

The Biggest Headache

From the Johnston, Pa., Tribune

The farmer and his problems continue to provide the biggest headache for the New Deal. American agriculture, by and large, has practically revolted against last year's farm plan, whose main tool was the marketing quota device.

Out of this has come the plan for selling farm surpluses to the nation's "underprivileged one-third" at cut-rate prices, the government, of course, to subsidize the venture. It presents so many complexities that its success is scarcely possible.

The whole farm aid program has bogged down and is in a state of paralysis. And the average farmer is growing increasingly dubious of the department of agriculture and its political nostrums.

Morning Motto

A man's character is the reality of himself. . . . His reputation is the opinion others have formed of him. . . . Character is in him; reputation is from other people—that is the substance, this is the shadow.—H. W. BEECHER.

Honesty in All Things

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for November 27 is Exodus 20:15; Matthew 19:16-22; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46; 20:9-16; the Golden Text being Exodus 20:15, "Thou shalt not steal.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

"THOU SHALT NOT STEAL" is the Golden Text for today, and the story of the lesson is about Zacchaeus and the little man who wanted so much to see this great man about whom everyone was talking, that he climbed into a tree so that he could see over the heads of the people. This tree is thought to be the fig-mulberry, which was a common tree in the Jordan valley. It has low spreading branches, which make it easy to climb.

Now Zacchaeus, the little man who was so anxious to see Jesus, was a publican—a tax collector who was rich and very much hated. Jesus, however, saw him and liked him. He called to him to come down from the tree, because He was going to stay at his (Zacchaeus') home. You can imagine how proud and pleased Zacchaeus was. The Great Man who was to stay with him, a man whom everyone disliked. He must have known how honest and good Jesus was, for he immediately told Him that he was going to give half his goods to the poor, and that if he had been dishonest with any man he would make it up to him "fourfold." That proved to Jesus that He was right in His estimation of the man.

We all like to own things. It is mark of man as distinguished from the animals. The latter have family feeling of ownership so that the male beast will protect its mate and the mother her children. But aside from that they do not understand such things as ours and mine. If they are hungry they take what they need wherever they find it. We call it eating when foxes kill our chickens and eat them, and other animals take things they need to satisfy their hunger. But it is not eating from their point of view, they are obeying the only law they know—that of hunger.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:15; Mat. 19:16-22; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46; 20:9-16.

So many people crowded around Jesus when He came to Jericho that Zacchaeus, being short, couldn't see Him at all.

So Zacchaeus, being an important person and used to getting his own way, climbed a tree so he could see.

Zacchaeus not only saw Jesus, but Jesus saw him and called to him, saying He was going to lodge with him.

Entering the temple, Jesus found it filled with traders, whom He drove out. (GOLDEN TEXT—Exodus 20:15.)

AMERICAN

Week-end Specials

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 30

WHEN YOU advertise a tractor or a mouse trap or a cigaret or a soap or anything else in the United States of America, your product had better be up to its advertised claims. If it isn't, John Customer will discover that fact rather promptly, and send you into the business oblivion you unquestionably deserve. It is the American way, and it is a good way.

Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, was well aware of that. Not so much as a business principle—for she was not too experienced in business—but as a rather obvious American moral principle. In short, she believed it was dishonest, sneaking, mean, to advertise a product or a service which was not as advertised. And she had advertised expert counsel in romance.

One of her most enthusiastic customers had been Mr. Worthington Gurley, almost 18 years old. She had accepted his money and agreed to guide his heart affairs. When Fate diabolically caused Worthington to fall in love with Sara Sue herself, she still did not feel free of obligation.

"He's a cute boy," she admitted, in serious discussion with her Mother Davis one night. "I've got to stop him from seeing so much of me. I've got a plan, too."

"What, dear?" Mother Davis asked.

"Never mind. I'll tell you about it afterward—it works. He thinks he's in love with me."

She chose as the scene for her nefarious frame-up the fashionable Montrose Plunge. This swimming pool, in a beautiful country club, is itself a work of art. It is outdoors in summer; indoors and heated in winter, with a glass roof. There are many beautiful tile pictures, many potted palms, pretty things and pretty things. Sara Sue agreed to go with Worthington for a "private" swim at 11 o'clock in the morning. It was a day when he had no classes from 10:30 to 1, and an hour when probably nobody else would be swimming. But—Sara Sue said she had to go down town first and would meet him at the Plunge. That was part of her nefarious plan.

Another nefarious move was to telephone Helen McKean, who was Sara Sue's friend and who weighed 212 pounds and who had a similarly adipose sister.

"Helen, be a pal, will you, honey?" Sara Sue pleaded. "You and Jane meet me for lunch at the Montrose club. And be there, in the pool, by 10:30. Will you? I'll tell you all about it then. Secret!"

The fat McKean girls were good friends of Sara Sue. They readily agreed.

Finally, Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, telephoned Miss Marcia d'Alaine, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, now a freshman at Rice Institute.

"Marcia, this is Sara Sue Davis. Can you meet me for lunch in the Montrose club? Or better—can you come and swim with me at 10:30 and then have lunch?"

Sara Sue knew very well Marcia could, and would. She had already investigated Marcia's class-room schedule for the morning. She knew Marcia liked her, was in fact one of her most enthusiastic customers.

Now Miss Marcia d'Alaine was highly important to Sara Sue's scheme. Miss d'Alaine, 25 per cent French, 75 per cent southern, 100 per cent American, and perhaps 200 per cent beautiful, was in fact the real crux of Sara Sue's plan, although the little freshman didn't know it and never did learn it.

Marcia's height was five feet two, which was six inches shorter for instance—than Worthington Gurley's height. Her weight was 108 pounds, which was 30 pounds less—for instance—than Worthington Gurley's weight. Her posture was the type whereby one can carry a book balanced on one's head, without appearing stiff or unnatural. Her figure was superb—the type that makes artists change from landscapes to figure painting—and her legs were of the classification glorified by the late Florenz Ziegfeld. All of these details, too, were rather essential to the frame-up. Another essential detail was the fact that Miss Marcia d'Alaine had the face that Shirley Temple probably will have when she grows up, and a smile that reminds one instantly of Janet Gaynor.

At a quarter of 11, Sara Sue telephoned the Montrose Plunge. "Oh, Worthington," she lamented into the transmitter. "I am terribly sorry, but I just can't get there yet. I had an emergency business call downtown, and I'm tied up. Please forgive me. Go on and swim and wait for me."

"I'm already swimming," said he. She knew that. She ascertained it from the attendant, in fact, before calling him to the phone. She had even planned it.

And now let us—as they say—shift the scene.

Let us play some bright, transitory music a la radio style, then refocus our attention on the beautiful Montrose Plunge.

You will know, of course, that contrast is a marvelous thing. You will have observed that a Negro's white teeth always flash against his ebony skin; that a diamond takes on added worth against purple velvet; that an elephant becomes more colossal and (get this, now) a doe more graceful, when the two stand side by side. This academic consideration is important to the new scene.

There, beside the pool, stand the McKean sisters, total tonnage, 415 pounds. They are good girls, good humored. But they're colossal—in solid bright red suits.

Out of the locker room, now, comes Miss Marcia d'Alaine.

Miss Marcia is willowy, slender, beautifully curved. She has on a dainty blue-and-white rubber cap from which half a dozen curls are peeking. The cap seems to make her great big eyes even bigger. She has a blue latex suit, not too daring, but form fitting, without a wrinkle anywhere.

Miss Marcia does not plant her legs 24 feet apart—the knees leaning somewhat intimately together—as if they were supports for a heavy wharf. She does not plop both feet down flat-footed on the colored tile, and stand arms akimbo like an angry washwoman. No, she lets the McKean sisters do that. Quite unconsciously and naturally, Miss Marcia seems to flow forward, to stand daintily on one foot with the left knee bent slightly in front of the right, and to have her hands gracefully at work controlling the peeking curls—just so her pretty arms show off perfectly. This posture is not studied; it is absolutely natural, while Miss Marcia makes small talk with the fat McKean girls, with whom she is acquainted.

And across the pool, near the men's locker room, Mr. Worthington Gurley has been waiting. He is sitting on a springboard, a little disgusted. Mr. Gurley, along with every other man in Christendom, dislikes to wait for a lady with whom he has a date. It makes him a trifle angry with her. His attention is likely to wander to anything in sight. Which fact was just there, Sara Sue Davis would have told you; and was, in fact, all a part of her nefarious plan.

Sara Sue didn't come. Worthington is piqued with her, hates the lovely little girl, made more lovely by the extraordinary contrast offered by the McKean sisters. Worthington knows the McKean sisters. They see him. They introduce him to the perfectly lovely little girl. Gosh!

It turns out, remarkably, that the lovely little girl has much in common with Worthington. They both are freshmen at Rice, for instance. They are about the same age. They both swim. They both like football. They both like this and that and the other. They both dislike alcoholic liquor. And raw oysters. And Republicans. They both love to dance— isn't that a coincidence?

Remember, too, that Mr. Worthington Gurley is not only an aggressive young man, but could be called handsome, even if he is rather boyish yet. Most of the adolescent acne has disappeared from him, leaving him clean and bright. His shoulders are broadening; his arms are strong. He can do a good one-and-a-half dive—look, Marcia. You see, they are already calling each other by their first names.

The McKean sisters do some swimming of their own; or what they call swimming. But actually their mission for the day has been fulfilled. They are left somewhat alone, in the shallow end of the pool. Nobody else is swimming this early, on an autumn day. Marcia and Worthington have the entire deep end to themselves. You see, Marcia can outswim him under water, but he can outdistance her in a surface race. Do you want to learn the Australian crawl, Marcia? Look, you do like this— Say, you learn quickly, Marcia. Say, you're—gosh!

Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, had often said that love is the grandest thing in the world; is far too important a matter to be treated lightly or dismissed with a casual laugh.

He Fished 13,000 Miles Without a Bite

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 25 (AP)—Capt. R. J. Tierney, master of the Grace line freighter Condor, lays claim to the world's most unsuccessful fishing trip.

Tierney paid out 500 feet of trolling line off Cape Blanco, Baja, California, trolled to Santiago, Chile, and back again, without a strike. The trip covered three months and 13,000 miles. Tierney used assorted baits varying from galley refuse to an old collar.

HASTE MAKES WASTE

IT DOESN'T PAY to be in too much of a hurry. Taking a trick, just because you are able to, may cost you two tricks later on. If the declarer plainly expects you to play your top card on one of his leads, it is frequently wise to speculate a bit about what would develop if you held on to the honor and played a small card instead.

then led the spade 7 and after winning with the A, West returned a diamond to dummy's A. East was then thrown in the lead with the heart Q. When he returned the club J, South went in with the A, ruffed the diamond 7 and on the spades Q and J discarded his two losing clubs. The club 4 was ruffed in the South hand and the heart 7 cashed. Declarer lost three tricks, two spades and the heart Q, so that he made his contract.

If West had refused the second spade trick, he could have set the hand, for South would then have had only one discard for his clubs instead of two.

SHOWING THE SITUATION

WHETHER TO RETURN the top, or the fourth-best of the suit led by your partner against a no trump game—that is sometimes quite a question. Ordinarily, unless your cards are so high they threaten to block the suit, your fourth-best is the favored return. It enables your partner to count the number held by the declarer and govern his own play accordingly.

One Diamond was South's opening call on this deal, to which North responded with 1-Heart. South then bid 1-No Trump, North 2-Hearts, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

Against this bidding, West led the spade 5, East covered with the Q and as declarer saw no hope in holding up, he went in with the A.

Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

His next move was to finesse the heart J, which lost to East's K. East then returned the spade 8, South covered with the 9 and West won with the 10. Not being sure that the K would drop the J and preferring to put East in the lead to come through South, West switched to the diamond J. This play enabled South to cash ten tricks instead of being set.

East should have returned the spade 2 to his partner to show his length in the suit and then when the K was played by West, he should have thrown his 8 so as to unblock for West.

Your 'Forgotten' Muscles Need Some Special Care

Here's a good exercise for stomach muscles, demonstrated by Rosemary De Camp, radio actress.

By BETTY CLARKE

AP Feature Service Writer

Stomach muscles are forgotten muscles.

Most of your muscles get some exercise if you are reasonably active during the day. Walk and you exercise those in your legs. Lift or move something and your arm muscles are flexed. Straighten yourself in your chair and you help your back muscles; if you sit up straight, shoulder muscles benefit, too.

But unless you give those muscles around your middle a little special attention they are likely to get flabby. They'll begin collecting excess fat and looking like what one corset manufacturer refers to as "the spare tire area."

If you do take trouble to exercise those stomach muscles, though, you'll get a double bonus: first better circulation throughout all your body, and second, better elimination.

What exercises should you take?

At least one of these three:

1. Get a medicine ball, or use your brother's basketball, partially deflated. Then lie with your stomach on the ball and roll around, balancing with the palms of your hands flat on the floor.

2. Try rotary massaging. Sit on the floor and hook your toes to a solid piece of furniture as a brace. Then put your hands on your hips and move your body around in as large a circle as possible.

3. Lie on your back and stretch your arms out at shoulder level. Raise your right leg and touch your right foot over your left hand, then your left foot over your right hand.

What is the correct defense against South's contract of 3-No Trump after the lead of the spade Q?

Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Take any exercises slowly and wisely. Don't try too much on the first, second or third days. By the fourth you ought to know about how much you can stand.

HAS BABY A NASTY COLD?

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do

Rub baby's back, chest, and throat with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him deep into bed. What a comfort! You know that VapoRub goes to work right away to relieve the misery of his cold without "dosing"—without risk of stomach upsets. And what a comfort to know that long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub will still be working—two ways at once—direct through the skin like a poultice, and direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. You'll find that often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Knowledge of Hormones Advanced by Experiments

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BOTANISTS have followed the lead of the workers on the ductless glands and are doing some remarkable things with plant hormones.

They can speed up the growth and maturation of plants. They can increase the size of the roots or they can make the leaves and branches grow. They can take up an old tree that is just about dying and by treatment make its roots begin to spread again, its branches to grow—a complete rejuvenation. And they do this with chemicals that apparently are not found, at least with any abundance in the plant itself.

Plants, in fact, respond very much better to hormone treatment than animals. It was the dream of the endocrinologist of a few years ago that some such results as those obtained on the old tree would be possible for man.

Attempts at rejuvenation with various ductless gland extracts and transplants have been made a-plenty, but up to now no real success can be reported. A good many old men have reported that they felt younger after the treatment, and for a while they may have acted younger. But they did not look any younger, nor did their general experience serve to encourage those of us who are rapidly approaching the period of senescence. It is a lovely Faust-like dream to wish to remain young and some day it may be accomplished, but the ex-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I read a report in the London LANCET that Mrs. Deansley and Parkes, of the National Institute for Medical Research, have conducted some experiments, putting transplants of active ovarian tissue under the skin of young male guinea pigs, thereby turning them

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT CAKE

1 cup butter 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup granulated sugar 3 cups pastry flour
1 cup milk 3 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla 4 egg whites, beaten
lemon extract

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the milk, extracts, salt, flour and baking powder. Beat for two minutes. Fold in egg whites. Half-fill layer cake pans that have been lined in waxed paper and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Cool and use the following pineapple mixture as a filling and a covering.

Pineapple Mixture

1/2 cup pineapple juice 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup granulated sugar 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
2 tablespoons corn syrup 1/4 cup crushed pineapple
2 egg whites, beaten

Boil the juice, sugar and syrup without stirring until a hard ball forms when a portion is tested in a cup of cold water. Pour into the whites and beat until cold. Add the rest of the ingredients.

Spiced Nuts

1 cup granulated sugar 1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup water 1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon vanilla 1/2 cups nuts (any kind)

Boil slowly and without stirring the sugar, water, salt, vanilla and spices. When a fine thread forms when a portion of the hot syrup is poured from a spoon add nuts immediately. Stir well until nuts are coated. Pour onto waxed paper.

Caramel Pudding

1 cup dark brown sugar 2 cups milk
1/4 cup flour 1 tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Blend the sugar with the flour and salt. Add the eggs and milk. Cook in a double boiler until the pudding becomes thick and creamy, stirring frequently. Mix thoroughly, cool and chill. Serve plain or with cream. (This pudding may also be used as a filling for baked pie or tart cases).

Corn Stuffing

1 cup cooked corn 1 egg yolk
1/2 cup soft bread, crumbled
1/2 cup chopped parsley 1 tablespoon butter, melted
1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup milk
Mix ingredients with a fork.

Glazed Carrot and Turnip Strips
2 cups cooked carrots 1/4 cup granulated sugar
2 cups cooked turnip strips 1/4 cup milk
6 tablespoons butter 1/4 teaspoon salt
Cut carrots and turnips into straw lengths one-eighth by three inches in size. Cook each vegetable in one quart of water and half a teaspoon of salt for ten minutes. Drain. Add carrot and turnip strips to butter heated in a frying pan. Cook slowly until brown. Add rest of ingredients. Cover and let simmer.

Tomato and Rice Puree

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 1 small onion sliced and cooked till slightly brown. Add 1 and 1/2 cups condensed tomato soup and 3 cups water. Add 1 sprig parsley, 1 cup cooked rice, 1 chopped celery top. Cook 1/2 hour. Strain, pressing rice through sieve. Heat thoroughly and add 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, few grains paprika and few grains cayenne. Garnish with hot potato chips that have been sprinkled with finely chopped parsley.

An Old Dish
Made New

Men will always sing the praises of creamed finnan haddie. One new version of this old favorite is this savory fish served in rich cream sauce in fluffy nests of mashed baked potato. The cream sauce is rich with cream and butter and adds to the flavor of the finnan haddie.

Be sure to beat the potatoes until light and fluffy after the hot milk and butter are added. Serve them stuffed on a large platter or chop plate with buttered whole carrots and green beans. These will add color and more good flavor to a delectable entree.

Creamed Finnan Haddie on the Half Shell

4 tablespoons butter 4 good sized baking potatoes
2 cups milk 4 tablespoons butter
1/2 lb. finnan haddie 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup hot milk

Scrub the potatoes, dry and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) until tender, about 1 hour. Melt the 4 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, blend in flour and add 2 cups milk, stirring and cooking until the sauce thickens. Wash finnan haddie thoroughly in cold water, cut into small pieces and stir into the white sauce. Place over boiling water, cover and cook for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. When the potatoes are done, remove from oven and split lengthwise; scoop out potato into hot mixing bowl, and salt and butter and mash until smooth, then add hot milk, using just enough to make them light and fluffy. Beat vigorously. Fill Potato shells with mashed potato, leaving a cavity in center of each. Fill to overflowing with creamed finnan haddie and return to hot oven (400 degrees F.) to brown lightly. Serve at once. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Cheese Cake Cookery

The success of a cheese cake often depends on the baking. Set the cake near bottom of the oven of temperature about 450 degrees (moderately hot) to partially bake the crust. Then reduce the heat, move the cake to center of oven and bake for forty-five minutes at about 350 degrees—moderately slow. Let the cake cool, out of draft, then cut it with a sharp knife dipped frequently into cold water.

Our Best Muffins Are Produced
By Cooks Who Are Good MixersBy LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Variety is said to be the spice of life. Coming down to muffins, spice will give variety to your batter.

Add a teaspoon of cinnamon, or half a teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves to your next batch of muffins and watch the family sit up. Here's another trick: Sprinkle a mixture of nutmeg, cloves, cinnamon and a little brown sugar over the tops of the muffins just before you put them into the oven.

From Soup to Nuts

Are you taking the fullest advantage of muffin recipes when you plan your meals? There's a type for every course, you know, from tiny, cheese-flavored nuggets for the soup or appetizer, to a sweet nut or fruit muffin to be served as dessert with a hot beverage.

Good muffins don't just happen; you have to make them carefully. First, always keep in mind this rule: Mix well, but do not beat.

Mix all the dry ingredients—the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, etc.—then pour in the milk, egg and melted fat and stir quickly. The whole mixing process should be finished in eighteen seconds at the outside. Muffins are ready for baking when the liquid has moistened the dry ingredients; any small lumps will bake out.

Waste No Time

Bake them at once in well greased pans, for twenty to twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven (from 350 to 400 degrees). The muffins are done when they are well browned on top and will slip out of the pans easily.

If you beat the batter your muffins are likely to have large holes or tunnels inside and knots or tails

CRANBERRY MUFFINS

1 cup cranberries 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar 1 egg
1/2 cup flour 1 cup milk
4 tablespoons baking powder 3 tablespoons melted butter

Chop cranberries and sprinkle with half the sugar. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and rest of sugar together. Beat egg slightly, combine with milk and melted butter and add to dry ingredients. Stir only until blended, then fold in cranberries. Transfer to buttered muffin pans and bake in hot oven (425 F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 12 medium sized muffins.

peaks on top. And if the baking heat is too slow, the muffins will be soggy and coarse-grained.

To vary muffin flavors add to the flour in your regular recipe about half a cup of any of these ingredients: Grated cheese, chopped figs or dates, sliced prunes, broken nut or coconut.

Bacon muffins are popular for breakfast or luncheon. Add one-third of a cup of cooked, crumbled crisp bacon to your batter and substitute bacon drippings for half the fat called for.

Sour Milk Muffins

Save all your sour milk or cream. It gives your muffins a delicate flavor and fluffy texture. (Buttermilk is equally good.)

Here is a sour-milk recipe. Mix two cups of flour, one teaspoon of soda, one teaspoon of baking powder, three tablespoons of granulated sugar, one-half a teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup of sour milk and two tablespoons of melted fat. Mix as directed and half fill greased muffin pans and bake twenty minutes.

Cranberry muffins, a pot of honey and plenty of butter — a fine starter for a Sunday breakfast.

utes in moderate oven. Omit the fat if you use sour cream.

Serve these muffins piping hot with a salad, a light dessert and plenty of coffee and you have a delicious luncheon for your club.

Here is a fruited muffin, or gem, that will pep up the most commonplace meal: Mix one cup of bran, one cup flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of soda, one-third of a cup of brown sugar, one-half a teaspoon of salt, variety in colors as well as watch-one cup of raisins (soaked five minutes in half a cup of boiling water) and one egg. Add half a cup of buttermilk and four tablespoons of melted fat. Mix and bake twenty five minutes in moderate oven. These taste good cold as well as hot. And remember—they will need lots of butter.

When planning your meals aim for a balance in soft and solid, strong and mild-flavored, and a variety in colors as well as watch-one cup of raisins (soaked five

Pot Roast

Rub surface of 4-pound pot roast with 3 tablespoons flour mixed with 1 1/2 teaspoons salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Brown on all sides in 2 tablespoons shortening. Add 1 medium onion, sliced, 1/4 cup chopped celery and 2 bay leaves. Cover and cook over low heat 3 or 4 hours. Serve with spiced peaches, oven browned potatoes and shoestring string beans dressed with Hollandaise sauce. Serve gravy made from the drippings. Roast should be turned twice during cooking.

Quicker Service

One platter containing several vegetables facilitates serving for dinner. With one passing you have all the vegetable supply. For instance, pile a mound of fluffy mashed potatoes in center of a warm platter and surround it with buttered peas and diced beets. Or use center and surround with glazed pineapple slices which in turn are outlined with buttered cauliflower and green beans.

West Penn Will Build New Lines In Parsons Area

Survey Right of Way from Montrose for High Power Line

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 25.—A crew of men working for the West Penn System have completed a survey for a right of way from Montrose to Parsons for the extension of its electric line into this city. Construction of a high power line carrying 12,000 volts will be run to this city within the next few weeks.

For a number of years, current has been supplied by the local tannery, which has their own generating plant, and sold to the West Penn who then resold to customers. The tannery will continue to generate current until the new line is brought in.

The West Penn owns real estate on Sluice Street in East Parsons, where a large grist mill stood many years ago. A sub-station will be built on this site, according to present reports, and the current for Parsons and surrounding territory will be transmitted from the giant generating plant at Riversville.

Announce Marriage

Announcement was made today of the recent marriage of Ralph Wimer, teacher in Parsons high school, and Miss Irene G. Currence, daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Currence, Elkins. She is a member of the Phi Chi Sorority of D. & E. College and a member of the M. E. church choir at Elkins. She is teaching in Elkins high school.

Eight Above Zero

The first snowstorm of the winter struck this section yesterday and reached a depth of twelve inches here, while in the mountain sections it was reported to be much deeper. Snow plows were called out for the first time this season to clear the snow and ice from the highways and trucks followed to spread clinders at the more dangerous places. This is the first time this winter that the ground has been covered with snow here. Last night the temperature reached a low reading of 8 above zero on Backbone mountain between here and Thomas. It was 16 above zero this morning.

Arrange Winter Sports Program For Glencoe, Pa.

B. & O. To Run Snow Train from Eastern Cities in December

Meysersdale, Pa., Nov. 25.—From present indications the aggressive little village of Glencoe, located a short distance east of Meysersdale, will be the chief contender for the entertainment of the city folk in the realm of winter sports this winter. Officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad were in Glencoe early this week contacting the leading residents of the community regarding the facilities for winter sports activities. As an introductory experiment it is planned by the railroad officials to operate the first snow train from Baltimore and Washington and intermediate points—Saturday, December 24th.

While Glencoe does not have hotel facilities for the accommodation of overnight sports fans, arrangements are being made to provide these accommodations in rural homes. The Glencoe citizens are contemplating the construction of modern ski-ways and toboggan slides for which the natural contour of the mountain lands is so admirably adapted, and rest rooms will also be erected for the accommodation of their guests.

Already publicity on Glencoe's winter sports program has been sent out to all the leading outdoor magazines, and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company will in the future distribute a pictorial folder with the snow train schedule over its entire line.

Dr. Hartman Speaks

Dr. Guy N. Hartman, Meysersdale, R. D., superintendent of the public schools of Somerset county, was the guest speaker last evening at a dinner meeting of the Somerset County Tax Collectors Association, which was held at Comestoga Inn, on Route 31. The officers of the association are Elmer Shipley, Confluence, president; John P. McNally, Somerset township, secretary-treasurer, and D. Guy Ploft, Meysersdale, vice-president. Tax collectors from many of the districts of the county were present and took part in the discussions that followed Dr. Hartman's address.

Boy Scout Outing

Meysersdale Boy Scout Troop No. 3, in charge of Scoutmaster Bert N. Tubbs, and his assistant, Paul E. Fuller left this afternoon for a week's camping outing in a log cabin located several miles from town in a mountain retreat. About 20 boys compose the party. They expect to return Saturday afternoon of next week. It is planned to hold another such camp outing during the holiday vacation in December.

Mrs. James Baird returned today to her home in Bethesda, following a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Baird, of North street.

Mt. McKinley in Miniature

Fairbanks, Alaska (AP)—Transportation companies and the Chambers of Commerce are financing construction of a Mount McKinley National Park relief map, approximately 9 by 6 feet for display at the San Francisco Fair.

A Better Way to Treat Constipation!

When you're constipated, it's a great temptation to be satisfied with quick relief. But medicines may become a habit. And they don't keep constipation from returning. It's so much better to get at the cause of the trouble! If you eat what most people do, chances are the only thing the matter is you don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. This crunchy cereal contains both "bulk" and the intestinal tonic, vitamin B. And it's not a drug, not a medicine! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers. Served by restaurants.
